Heap Big Goose

Election Shows U. S.

Hasn't Lost Caution

This is a story about the wild

Lloyd Spencer, B. R. Hamn and

B. W. Edwards of Hope, and A. M.

Perkins, Remington Arms representative of Shreveport, went on a goose hunt the first of this week at Gilchrist, Texas, on the Gulf coast east of Galveston.

They took with them Charley

Greathouse, negro of McNab. It was a good hunt and everybody had a fine time — but the high point was this:

Spencer brought down with a single shot two giant Canadian geese — the ring-necked goose known as the Honker. The geese fell in the great marsh that borders the Gulf of Mexico, and Charley Greathouse went out to retrieve them.

Charley came wading back with a 12-pound Honker firmly grasped in either hand, looked out over the strange, wild marsh they had come to, 400 miles from home, and said to Spencer:

"Boss, if ah wasn't a poor man

this here trip wouldn't cost you nothin'!"

The Republicans didn't win control of congress in last Tuesday's national election but the voters made certain of one thing: Federal policies the next two years will be dictated by a coalition rather than by a single man or party.

Public reaction to these emergency times was entirely natural and wholesome. If we must rule by presidential edict at least the granting of such arbitrary power shall be placed in the hands of both conservatives and liberals — neither the one nor the other alone.

Not even in crisis days do Americans forget freedom's distrust of one man — or one faction — rule.

This truth was shown in the Ohio senatorial campaign, where the Democratic administration, the CIO Political Action Committee, and other alleged liberal elements engaged up in an effort to beat

Bob Taft. The Ohio senator cleaned em all with a majority of 450,000—

the largest in the whole history of Ohio.

Taft has his good points — and his bad ones. He knows where he is going on domestic policies; but he thinks that he is tinged with isolationism has just enough truth in it (providing the rest of us really know where we are going) to hurt him in these days of international peril.

But the clincher is that men of both parties in Washington, D. C.,

Hope Star carriers this week will receive "Flying Saucers" — a gadget consisting of a metal propeller blade and wire gyro-inertia ring, which keeps it hovering. This rig is shot into the air by means of a spot and twine launching mechanism. This "Saucer" will lift to great heights and is used by the U. S. Department of Commerce to demonstrate fundamental laws of aerodynamics to classrooms.

So if you see a "Flying Saucer" don't investigate because its likely to be "Dad" playing with Junior's toy. The toys are distributed here by Gibson Wholesale Drug Co.

In This Age of Power and Speed a City Can Die Very Quickly as Did Sinuiju

By HAL BOYLE

North Korea — (P) — Ever see a city die?

In this age of power, and speed, the death can be as swift as it is terrible.

That was the way it was at Sinuiju. Yesterday it was a city of 100,000 lying on the Korean side of Pennsylvania — were both defeated by Republicans.

Lucas, with 12 years in the senate, was majority leader there, meaning he was key man among the Democrats. Myers, with only six years' service, was Democratic whip, meaning he was Lucas' right-hand man.

If you're wondering why men with only 12 and six years' experience could get such important jobs, the answer is: Those two spots don't depend on seniority but on choice of the Democrats who pick their leaders on the floor. So the Democrats will have to pick two of their number as successors.

Whether or not these defeated men — so long loyal to the Democratic party — disappear from Washington life is something else. President Truman may find spots for them in some kind of jobs in the government.

the Yalu river bordering Manchuria.

It was noon when the growing rumble of the approaching U. S. Superforts gave the first warning of doom.

By 12:30, 90 per cent of this Communist nest lay in ruins. It was ripped and burned by more than 600 tons of fire bombs and high explosives.

My window for this awesome show was a plexiglass canopy of a training version of the F-80 shooting star jet.

It was piloted by Capt. William J. Evans, Norwich, Conn., aide to Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, U. S. fifth air force commander.

Flying between 500 and 600 miles an hour, this was what we saw:

The land lay wrinkled and brown. To me the whole situation seemed like a nightmare out of childhood.

Because there below me was a river that is named the Yalu, boundary between North Korea and Communist China's Manchuria. But it could also be called the Kaw.

The Kaw is a river that divides two states and two cities, but not two worlds. The Kaw is a mighty tributary of the Missouri river that separates Kansas City, Mo., from Kansas City, Kas.

The Kaw is a river I have known since birth. I still have a mother living on one side and a brother on the other side of the Kaw.

There may be relatives on either side of the Yalu too. We know there are two towns that reach and touch each other across the river there.

One is the openly enemy Korean city of Sinuiju. The other is the peaceful, prosperous metropolis of Antung, a Manchurian city from which the enemy has by day flown Soviet-made war planes across the border into combat against American fighters.

And by night over the bridge that leads from Antung to Sinuiju have come American intelligence officers: report elements of perhaps six Chinese divisions.

We can attack Sinuiju, but we cannot go on across the winding, snake-like Yalu to attack Antung because it is Manchuria.

The fighters and bombers of the far eastern air forces observe that distinction as accurately as a surgeon who has to make a sudden, life-saving incision.

It was a delicate and demanding but very necessary thing that those bombers had to do. They swam slowly through flak to kill this town of Sinuiju, the focus point for the enemy.

They had to stay within a narrow lane to do it. They did it with the skill of any other artisan who knows his tools and his trade.

At 12:07 the first flight of B-29 Superforts let go with what they had brought. The bombs fell at the northeast edge of the city.

Flight by flight the bombers let go. Step by step the city below was destroyed.

The clay walls fell apart in the heat. The straw roofs burned. The wood flamed.

And the people died or fled.

divided that visa be issued to nine Chinese Communist representatives en route to Lake Success for discussions of Red charges of American aggression against Fortroa.

However, the U. S. asked that charges of China's intervention in the Korean conflict be taken up Friday — ahead of the Chinese delegation's arrival.

MacArthur's intelligence spokesman in Tokyo said the Chinese are continuing to cross the boundary in large numbers.

American F-80 jet fighters bombers struck heavily at a major crossing point — a rail-highway bridge spanning the Yalu at bomb-riddled Sinuiju in extreme north-west Korea.

The U. S. fifth air force reported a direct hit on the bridge with a 1,000-pound general purpose bomb.

No mention was made of any hits on a newer railway bridge across the Yalu at Sinuiju. Both spans were targets in Wednesday's massive B-29 raid that virtually wiped out Sinuiju. U. S. navy carrier planes made a follow-up attack on the two bridges Thursday and reported direct hits.

No Red fighter plane opposition was reported at Sinuiju, but American B-29s were attacked ten times to the northeast in a raid on Uiju, on the south bank of the Yalu.

MacArthur's spokesman said the big bombers met fighter opposition and "violent" anti-aircraft fire. But he had no report on whether any of the B-29s — a flight of 12 — were "knocked" down.

Nor did he say whether the Red fighters were jets.

Uiju, described as a command post and supply center, was hit with 80 tons of bombs. Also, hit by the Superforts was Chongjin, east coast city 60 air miles southwest of the Soviet Siberian border.

The spokesman said Red fighter planes strayed U. N. troops six and a half miles west of Kunu, northwest Korea. He had no further news of the Chongchun bridgehead in northwest Korea. He had no further details.

One Arkansas Exchange Is Picketed

Little Rock, Nov. 10 —(P)— Apparently only one Arkansas telephone exchange was being picketed as the nationwide strike of Western Electric employees entered its second day.

The Southwestern exchange at Hot Springs was the only one reported still being picketed late last night.

Some operators and other traffic employees refused to cross the picket lines — a company announcement said 50 per cent. A strikers' report said the annually-operated service at Hot Springs was completely tied up.

Earlier yesterday, there had been temporary picket lines at the Little Rock and Pine Bluff Southwestern Bell exchanges. Long distance calls were slowed down at Little Rock, where local service is dial-operated, and there was more serious interference at Pine Bluff, which like Hot Springs has a manually-operated system.

Both lines were withdrawn — at Little Rock under court order and at Pine Bluff without explanation — and Southwestern employees, who'd honored the picket lines returned to work.

Both Western Electric and Southwestern Bell Telephone company are parts of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and employees of both are members of different sections of the CIO Communication Workers of America.

No strike is on against Southwestern Bell, for which along with other Bell companies Western Electric manufactures and installs equipment.

Chancellor Frank Dodge in issuing a temporary injunction against picketing here pointed to the interference with operations of a company against which no strike had been called. The CWA didn't indicate whether it would seek to have the temporary order set aside.

Western Electric employees throughout the nation — 24 are stationed in Arkansas — are striking for higher wages.

DOROTHY DIX

Who Rules Roost?

Dear Miss Dix: Which do you think is the most likely to give in after marriage, the husband or the wife? Which are more tyrannical, men or women? GIRL AND BOY

Answer: The generally accepted theory is that the man is the head of the house and that the wife meekly gives in to his wishes and obeys him. But so far as my observation goes in America, at least, it is the wife who rules the roost, and it is the husband who has mighty little to say in the house he supports.

Man Gives Up Church
When either party gives up his or her church for the sake of harmony, it is nearly always the husband who does. And, as a general thing it is the wife's family who camp in the spare room and the wife's people who are helped in times of need instead of the husband. A hundred times more men support their wives' parents than their own. It is a common thing to see a wife change all of her husband's habits and tastes, but it is a rare thing for a woman to adopt her husband's even when she knows that he is more intelligent than she is.

The reason for this is not that men are more easily going or adaptable than women, but that they are more peace-loving. A man gets all the fighting with other people that he wants in his daily business and when he comes home he doesn't want to scrap with his wife about what he eats, and where he sits, and whether little Johnny shall go to one school or another. So he gives in and lets what is set before him and lets his wife do her own way rather than argue about it.

Women also make their husbands do their way by the sheer force of persistence. They know that you can nag a man into doing practically anything, and so, when they have set their hearts upon accomplishing some purpose they keep everlastingly ding-donging at it until they wear out the husband's resistance, and he surrenders.

There are both male and female tyrants, but I think the female of the species is more deadly than the male, because she is so thorough. Nothing, however little, escapes her and when once a woman sets out to dominate all about her she simply crushes them into dust beneath her feet.

She does not leave them freedom to draw a single breath. I have known many good, devoted wives and mothers who were such tyrants that they made Nero look like a liberator.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What can I do with a husband who is so sensitive that he keeps me walking on eggs all the time, and even at that I am sure to make a misstep that sends him for days into spells of silence and pouting? I have got to check all my utterances before I speak. Fifteen years of this nervous system, and I am trying to create an attitude of indifference, which in the end will be the best if I can only do it. Can you help me to solve my problem? MRS. J. F.

Answer: Sensitiveness is only egotism and selfishness raised to the nth degree. So far as my experience and observation go it is one of the vices that is incurable.

The sensitive keep their feelings spread all over the place. They expect everybody else to perform acrobatic feats in keeping off of them, but they never have the slightest regard for anybody else's feelings, or make an effort to keep from doing something that will hurt others. Furthermore, their vanity makes them think themselves so important that everyone else is thinking about them all the time and talking about them, so they can find offense when none was intended.

The only thing you can do with such people is to just leave them to indulge in their orgies of self-pity and harden your heart against them. The only woman whom I have ever known who dealt successfully with a man who would go into silence when anything displeased him was a level-headed wife who would put on her hat and go on a visit somewhere whenever her husband began looking ill-used and answering in monosyllables. She would leave a note informing him that whenever he felt cheerful and chatty again let her drop her a line and she would return. Seeing how ridiculous he made himself, he reformed. Why not try the remedy?

Dear Miss Dix: I am a girl of 25. Have lived a blameless life, but the man I am engaged to insists upon my "confessing my past." Says he will forgive me. But I haven't any past to confess. Shall I make up a story to tell him? BEWILDERED GIRL

Answer: Not unless you are the biggest moron that ever lived. Your sweetheart must be crazy, or else his only associates among women must have been very loose characters if he finds it impossible to believe that there are any decent girls left.

Dear Miss Dix: Can you suggest some way whereby I can induce my mother to leave my father and start her life anew? She is miserably unhappy. So is he. And so are we all.

My father is a fine man, but he doesn't love my mother and never has, yet because of some queer sense of chivalry he has continued to live on with her. She won't let him go because the words "divorce" and "separation" mean something common to her and that would hurt her pride. So the two live in the same house, and eat at the same table, hating each other and never speaking. My brother and I never go home because we just can't support my father as he has always done, but she won't listen to it. Don't you think that we children are the least entitled to ask our parents to provide us with a home—two homes if necessary—where we could visit each and be happy and love them both and not have something heavy in our hearts all the time.

Answer: I certainly do, and as much as your mother refuses to do anything about ending an intolerable situation on account of her silly false pride, it is up to your father to take the initiative in breaking up the purgatory in which you all live, and leave a house that has long since ceased to be a home.

No Good in It
No good and moral purpose can be served by a husband and wife dwelling under the same roof when they have come to hate each other, when each brings out all that is worst in the other's nature.

Because children so need both a father and mother, and so need a home to grow up in, many husbands and wives who have come to dislike each other feel it a duty to go on living together for the sake of their children. This would be a fine and noble thing to do if they had the strength of character to bury their differences and make a home that was full of peace and harmony.

But very few men and women have enough self-control to do this. The disgruntled husband and wife make the home a place of perpetual

Puerto Rican Indicted by Grand Jury

Washington, Nov. 10 —(P)— A federal grand jury today indicted Oscar Collazo, 37-year-old Puerto Rican, for murder in connection with the Nov. 1 attempt on President Truman's life.

The charge is based on the killing of Leslie Coffelt, 40, White House guard, when Collazo and Griselio Torresola tried to shoot their way into the Blair House, the White House's temporary residence. They quarrel incessantly before the children. They appeal to the children for sympathy and to take sides in their feud. They pull the poor little creatures apart in their loyalties and make them utterly miserable.

So, when people talk about keeping their homes together for their children's sake, they do it to no avail unless they make them a happy home. Better no home at all, or the two homes for which my correspondent longs, then one in which the father and mother squabble.

Dear Miss Dix: We are an able bodied couple. My husband is employed, making quite good wages, but we think we could save a few dollars each month if we gave up our home and went to live with our son and his wife. They are in very moderate circumstances, have two little children and their home is small. Our daughter-in-law is a sweet girl, but would she, as a mother, be able to take in a mother-in-law who would be a burden to her? Would she object to taking us in?

A MOTHER
Answer: The few dollars you would save by going to live with your son and his wife would not compensate you for the family row you would precipitate by doing so. You are on amiable terms with your daughter-in-law now. Stay that way by not going to live with her. It is easy to love people whom we only see occasionally, but it is hard not to get disillusioned with those with whose every fault and fobble we are brought into daily and hourly contact.

Of course your daughter-in-law does not wish you to come to live with her and of course she wants to be alone in her own house with her own husband and children and no outsider. Every woman in the world desires that. She regards her in-laws, and even her own mother, as an affliction. That is just nature and no reflection on either lady.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My wife and I have been married fifteen years. We have a daughter 12 years old and my wife often says that if it wasn't for her she would have left long ago. She likes to be well dressed and go to parties and shows. I love the outdoors, hunt and fish. As we do not agree, we have hit on this plan: We are dividing our savings and I am going to board with her and also pay her a salary, as she is still going to help with the business. We are not going to give a divorce, but while we live under the same roof we are both going to do as we please and make no claim upon the other. What do you think of this plan?

MR. X.
Answer: Evidently the trouble between you and your wife is that each wants to make the other do his or her way. Once you have made up your mind that she can spend her time in the beauty shops and she concedes you the right to spend your money on fancy fishing tackle instead of parlor curtains, you will be able to get along peaceably together. Anyway your plan keeps a home for your daughter and gives her two parents instead of one.

Temperance Group Blasts State Voters

Little Rock, Nov. 10 —(P)— Arkansas missed a chance to do a great thing when it rejected the prohibition act at last Tuesday's general election, the Arkansas Baptist convention was told yesterday.

"But," Clyde C. Coulter of Little Rock told the convention, "apparently the voters think more of cash than character."

Coulter, executive secretary of the Temperance League of Arkansas, said that his group would continue to fight the sale of liquor "until Christ comes."

He said that in future efforts to ban liquor sales in Arkansas the Temperance League of Arkansas would be active.

Torresola was killed in the rain of bullets from guards which felled Collazo with wounds in the chest and shoulder.

Conviction of murder carries the possibility of a death sentence in the District of Columbia.

From the stories of eyewitnesses, there is some evidence that Torresola actually shot Collazo. But under District of Columbia law when two or more persons engage in a felony and kill someone, all are considered equally liable to charges of murder.

Approximately 8,000,000 rental dwelling units now are under rent control. There were about 10,000,000 at the height of controls in 1946.

Some 800 communities with about 1,000,000 rental dwellings have voted to retain controls after Dec. 31, the housing controller's office reported. These communities have a combined population of about 20,000,000.

The proposed bill to extend existing controls until a final vote would give the new congress, convening in January, three months to survey the whole rental housing situation before the ceilings go off in many communities.

Woods' office said a survey now is being made to identify the communities around military installations where new controls would be imposed if congress grants the expediter the power.

A spokesman for Woods told a reporter the office is receiving numerous reports of tenants being "bounced" where concentrations of populations have occurred since the outbreak of the Korean war.

He reported that Col. James A. Murphy, the commanding officer at Camp Atterbury, Ind., has requested reimposition of controls there.

Spending, Record Taxes Are Ahead

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, Nov. 3. — Huge spending to bolster America's military might and perhaps record high taxes to help pay for it shaped up today as the top issues in the new congress meeting in January.

Foreign policy will figure importantly in the debate, too. And the Communists in government dispute may be revived with new vigor.

Closely tied to those key issues are a number of others. In the general defense picture which is likely to keep on the shelf indefinitely most of President Truman's domestic "fair deal" program.

The emphasis all along the line when the 82nd congress takes over is likely to be on strengthening this country against Communist aggression.

Government spending during the year starting next July 1 probably will run well over $50,000,000,000. There has been some talk the new budget may total as much as $65,000,000,000, with by far the biggest share earmarked for defense.

In contrast, federal spending this year may add up to about $42,500,000,000. Appropriations are higher, but may not be fully spent. Taxes already have been hiked $4,700,000,000 to help meet the added defense costs. In the bill is an excess profits tax bill expected to provide another $400,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 from business.

A "lame duck" session of the expiring 81st congress scheduled later this month may act on that measure. If it doesn't, the bill will have a top priority in the new congress.

Besides deciding how many billions of dollars to provide for the U. S. military machine, the 82nd congress faces a decision on how much economic and arms aid to supply to anti-Communist nations abroad.

Also ahead in the broad national defense field are decisions on: 1. Whether to set up universal military training of American youths.

2. Continuing and possibly broadening the draft law. It expires next July 3.

3. Extension of the economic controls program, including authority for wage-price curbs and perhaps rationing of some consumer goods. Most of the present authority will run out next June 3.

Between now and then there probably will be much more debate over whether Mr. Truman should exercise his authority to control prices and wages.

4. Extension and tightening of the rent control law. Controls expire Dec. 31 unless local areas elect to continue them another six months.

One issue regarded as certain to pop up in the new congress is the Communist control law put on the books last September over Mr. Truman's veto.

The upset defeat of veteran Democratic Senator Millard E. Tydings in yesterday's election points up the possibility of the Communists in government row exploding again.

Tydings, who was trying for a fifth term, headed the Democratic-controlled senate committee which investigated charges by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) that Communists infested the state department. The committee majority labeled the charges "a fraud and a hoax."

McCarthy and other Republicans accused the Democrats of conducting a whitewash. McCarthy campaigned against Tydings and has said repeatedly he intends to keep hammering away on the Communist issue.

That issue also is sure to crop up in foreign policy debate in congress, as it did during the campaign. Republicans asserted and Democrats denied that the Truman administration had in effect encouraged Communist aggression.

The defeat of the Senate Democratic leader Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, is almost certain to prompt new Republican attacks on the Truman administration's handling of foreign policy. That policy was a main issue in the Illinois campaign won by Republican Everett Dirksen.

Unseasonable Cold Strikes Parts of Nation

By the Associated Press

Winter's raw elements, cold, snow and strong winds, brought unseasonable weather for large parts of the country today.

Temperatures—far below normal levels—dipped to winter season marks in many parts of the frosty belt from the Rockies to the Ohio Valley and into central Texas and Arkansas.

They skidded to 13 below in Laramie, Wyo., and below zero readings were reported in other parts of Wyoming and sections of Colorado. Denver's early morning was 6. Below freezing was general over the mid-continent area.

The only mild weather reported by federal weather bureau forecasters was over the southwest Atlantic coast states.

Snow whipped across the upper Great Lakes region and there were snow showers south of Northern Missouri and central Illinois. Six and seven inch falls were reported in parts of Minnesota and Michigan.

Temperatures were 30 to 35 degrees below normal over most of the cold belt. Forecasters said the abnormal cold would continue over most of the central part of the nation for at least 24 hours. The cold air moderated as it moved eastward to the Atlantic seaboard.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

The burning of leaves in the streets is very undesirable for three reasons:

1. A passing car with a leaky gas tank could cause a serious fire or explosion.
2. The smoke is a traffic hazard. Some child coming from behind the smoke into the street could get killed.
3. The ashes and unburned leaves stop up our storm sewers.

We have an Ordinance against it and we hope every citizen will co-operate.

Control Legislation Almost Sure

Washington, Nov. 10. — Legislation to strengthen and expand controls will be presented to congress after reconvening tomorrow, a reliable source in the senate said today.

A spokesman who asked that he not be named, said the senate's plan has been approved by the committee.

Existing rent ceilings will be extended from Dec. 31 to Dec. 31, unless the community or its government votes to continue them.

Under present law, all communities with a population of 10,000 or more are required to extend controls to Dec. 31, 1951.

The housing expediter bill, to remove rent controls in communities where housing shortages have occurred because of military installations. The expediter now has no power to put controls in new areas.

Woods' office said a survey now is being made to identify the communities around military installations where new controls would be imposed if congress grants the expediter the power.

A spokesman for Woods told a reporter the office is receiving numerous reports of tenants being "bounced" where concentrations of populations have occurred since the outbreak of the Korean war.

He reported that Col. James A. Murphy, the commanding officer at Camp Atterbury, Ind., has requested reimposition of controls there.

The Pennsylvania 28th national guard division is being trained there.
